Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP): This is the minimum standard for improvement that all schools must achieve each year according to the federal No Child Left Behind accountability requirements. To meet AYP, all students and all student subgroups (i.e., Special Education, English Second Language Learner, Economically Disadvantaged, and five ethnic groups) must achieve a certain level of participation and proficiency on the State reading and mathematics tests. In addition, schools must meet either an on-time graduation rate for high schools or must not exceed a retention rate for elementary and middle/intermediate schools. If a school meets the minimum standard for all 37 indicators, it has "Met" AYP. If a school fails to meet one (or more) of the 37 indicators, it has "Not Met" AYP.

Charter Schools: Charter schools are independent public schools designed and operated by educators, parents, community leaders, educational entrepreneurs, and others. They were established by State legislation and are directly responsible to the Hawaii Board of Education, which monitors their quality and effectiveness, but allows them to operate outside of the traditional system of public schools.
